

First Term English Exam

Recently, my grandparents often tell me how difficult their life was when they were young; they say that my generation has much easier lives than they had. I agree with them. In fact, life today is much more comfortable and easier than it was in my grandparents' time for some reasons.

In the past, life was hard because all the work was done by hand. The housework was difficult because there was no electricity, gas or water; they used wood to light a fire to cook or to keep the house warm in cold weather and water from rivers or rain to clean the house. They had to wash their clothes by hand and had to boil water to take a bath once a week. My grandparents were farmers; they had to work in the rice field all day long even without resting on weekends. They raised cows, ducks and sheep in their farmhouse. They were part of a large family. They respected and helped each other. Their clothes were traditional, formal and simple. If they wanted to travel, they had to go on horseback, the roads were difficult and the travel was tiring and lasted hours, days or months.

Today, life became easy thanks to technological developments.
