First Term English Exam

Part one: Reading comprehensionRead the text carefully, then do the activities.

The lives of Inuit people of North America have changed a lot in 30 years. At first, people used to call them Eskimos, but now they are called Inuit, which means the "people".

They used to live in igloos in the winter but today many of them live in houses in small towns. They used to hunt seals- they ate the meat and made the clothes from the fur. Many of them still wear seal- skin clothes today because they are very warm. Remember, the weather is extremely cold for many months of the year.

An 85 year-old Inuit. Maraino Tagalik, told us about her early life: "Our winter igloos were very warm. We used to cook inside so sometimes it got too hot. When I was a child I used to take off most of my clothes when I was in our igloo. In the short summers, we lived in seal-skin tents, but I used to go as much as possible playing outside.

To move over the snow. They used to wear special snowshoes on their feet, but today many Inuits drive snowmobiles. These machines can travel long distances in a short time. In the past, it used to take them days or weeks, to travel the same distance.

Inuit children never used to go to school, they learnt everything from their parents but like all North Americans, they spend about 10 years of school children.

Life is not as hard as it used to be, but many of the older Inuits hate town life and want to go back to the old days.

Seal= phoque.
