Time : 2 hours

Part One: Reading & Interpreting

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it.

In the middle Ages, historians spoke of the two Spains, one Christian and the other Muslim. By Spain they meant the Iberian Peninsula: Spain and Portugal. On the other hand Muslims spoke of Andalusia that embraced all parts of Iberia which were Muslim. Europeans called the Andalusians Moors and their culture, Moorish.

Andalusia was among the greatest manifestations of civilization Europe has ever witnessed. It was tolerant and cosmopolitan. It embraced Muslims, Christians and Jews. The Muslim population was diverse: Iberians, Berbers, Arabs, Tautens, Sub-Saharan Africans, Slavs, Persians and others. Musa Ibn Maimun a Jew physician once said that the greatest danger for an Andalusian Jew was attraction to Islam.

However, Christians and Jews took pride of the Andalusian way of life, habits, styles and the Arabic tongue. Several Jews wrote on the virtues of Arabic and recognized it was superior to Hebrew. A Jew physician and translator of Arabic works said that Arabic was the richest language in the world and the best suited for every type of writing. He felt Arabic was the supreme poetic language for science and the perfect language for philosophy, since it penetrated the hearts of matters and made the obscure clear.

Even Moorish music was an advanced science. Andalusian music being among the most highly developed music forms in the world. Thanks to Ziryab “the Nightingale”, who was also known for “Al Muwashahat”.

Part One: Reading & Interpreting*Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it.

The Alhambra in Granada was built by the Muslims when Spain was known as Al Andalus. Originally it was a fortress, a palace and a small city all in one. Today, it is one of the most popular tourist attractions in Spain. The name 'Alhambra' comes from an Arabic word and means 'red castle.' This probably refers to the colour of the clay used to build the walls and towers. The Alhambra was completed in the 14th century by Yusuf I and Muhammed V, Sultan of Granada. Until the end of Al Andalus, it was the home of the Muslim rulers and their court. In 1492, the Catholic Monarchs, Ferdinand and Isabella conquered Granada, the last Muslim kingdom on the peninsula. The Christian court was established and the Muslims had to leave their beautiful palace.

During the 18th and 19th centuries, the Alhambra fell into neglect. Its walls began to fall down and its gardens became overgrown. After public protests, it was declared a national monument in 1870. Since then, a lot of work has been done to preserve the building for future generations.

The Alhambra contains some wonderful examples of Moorish architecture and engineering. Colored tiles cover the walls and delicate arches surround the many patios. The gardens are watered by a sophisticated irrigation system. One of the most impressive aspects of the Alhambra is its position. It is built on a hill on the south-eastern border of the city and behind it are the mountains of the Sierra Nevada.

Part One: Reading & Interpreting*Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it.

Civilization developed slowly in different parts of the world. People began to settle in areas with abundant natural resources. For thousands of years, people have given up their nomadic lifestyles to settle in a part of the world archaeologists later called the Fertile Crescent. This latter is a boomerang or crescent-shaped region that extends from the eastern shore of the Mediterranean Sea to the Persian Gulf. The Fertile Crescent is a rich food-growing area in a part of the world where most of the land is too dry for farming.

Some of the best farmland of the Fertile Crescent is on a narrow strip of land between the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers. The two rivers travel near one another for thousands of miles before they combine to drain into the Persian Gulf. The Greeks called this area Mesopotamia, which means "land between the rivers." Water from the Tigris and Euphrates soaks into the surrounding land, so although Mesopotamia has very little rainfall, the land is rich in nutrients.

Many different civilizations flourished in this small region. The Sumerians slowly developed one of the first civilizations in the southeastern region of Mesopotamia as long as 7,500 years ago. The Sumerians created the first written language called Cuneiform. This wedge shaped language was the first recorded language that did not use hieroglyphics or pictures to represent words. The Sumerians would imprint the letters onto clay tablets using a stylus, or writing tool, to make the triangle shaped letters. The first forms of writing were created to keep track of the crops and trade.

Several other civilizations dominated part or all of the Fertile Crescent the Persians of modern day Iran, the Greeks under Alexander the Great, the Romans, the Assyrians, the Egyptians, and the Ottoman Turks.
