

Third term test in English

Becoming Volunteer in Charity Organizations

People who want to do favour may join charity organizations or donate money. They generally prefer donating money because it is easy, fast, and effective and they don't spend time for help. Even if they don't know where it goes.

First of all, joining charity organizations are more effective than donating money because when people donate money they aren't sure that what is making with their money. Also despite their help for something, they don't see anything about help and they can't be pleased totally. In addition, some aids request money such as, emergency cost bus if one doctor joins a charity organization, he can help without money. He can feel good for that and his life gains meaning. If people come together, they can do everything. Therefore, join ng charity organizations is more efficient than donating money.

Secondly, people should prefer charity organizations because some problems can't solve with money such as cleaning the environment, planting trees and donating blood or organ. Furthermore, it is clear that donating money sometimes isn't needed.

On the other hand, supporters of donating money argue that it is fast and easy but it doesn't include the soul. When people become volunteers without any doubt, they feel good because they can meet good people in charity organizations and they can see what they are helping. Become a volunteer and they should live these feelings.

To conclude, whether people should donate money or no, it seems tha joining charity organizations might be the better choice because it is more efficient and include feelings.
